

Events don't determine whether or not you're going to be happy. They're just events. You determine whether or not you are going to be happy. You can be happy to just be alive. You can be happy having all these things happen to you, and then be happy to die. If you can live this way, your heart will be so open and your spirit so free, that you will soar up to the heavens.

- the untethered soul